About Rose Academy

Preparatory basketball academy • Toronto, Canada

Rose Academy is a preparatory basketball academy serving student-athletes who intend to pursue collegiate basketball at the NCAA Division I level. The program pairs daily practice with a full Ontario secondary curriculum and a managed residential environment.

Athletes train under a Division I coaching staff, compete on a forty-game schedule against the leading prep programs in North America, and complete academic coursework through a Ministry-approved partner school in Markham, Ontario.

FROM THE FOUNDER

Rose Academy was founded with an expectation that extends beyond competitive basketball. Every student-athlete enrolled at the academy is prepared not only as a refined player, but as a young man equipped for the responsibilities of adulthood.

Players who graduate from Rose Academy carry with them more than a scholarship. They carry a foundation.

"The transfer portal has made the path to a college scholarship more difficult for high school athletes. Rose Academy provides direct access to a coaching staff that has operated at the Division I level."

Why Toronto

A basketball capital with direct access to the United States

Toronto is among the most concentrated basketball-development markets in North America. Canada is the second-largest source of NBA talent globally, and over four hundred Canadian players sign with NCAA programs each year — the majority from the Greater Toronto Area.

KEY ADVANTAGES

Toronto Raptors

NBA franchise and development hub

Two International Airports

Direct flights across the United States

Cross-Border Access

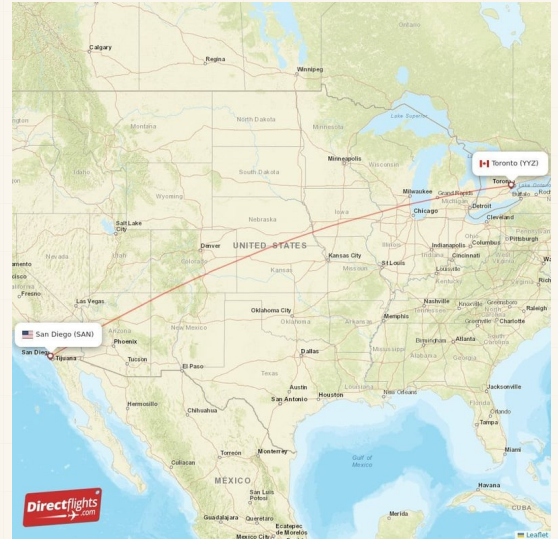

Forty-minute drive to New York State

Visa Approval

99% student visa success rate

Recruitment Access

NCAA and NBA scouts actively recruit locally

TORONTO • ACCESS

Direct flights across North America

Athletes train in a major NBA city while remaining within a short drive of the United States — the geographic advantage that defines the Rose Academy schedule.
